3. Astoria Visual Arts Divine Beacons

Sara Moen, Lezlie Amara Piper, Sharon Servilio, and Alana Garrigues explore the harmony between the perceiver and the perfection of nature. Through a variety of media, each artist connects with elements in nature that are hard-wired into our DNA and impossible to escape. Acknowledging our deep relationship to all living life, from plants to animals, restores the emotional and mental balance necessary to see the vast beauty around us.

4. Brumfield Gallery Deborah Bridges "Persona"

The exploration of an idea in a piece is central to Deborah Bridges' art. She works in a series until the idea is exhausted within the form. This current body of work, "Persona", began in 2018. When asked what is it that she is expressing, she says, "I love the incongruity of them. I love the complicated and mysterious humanity of them. My figures are grappling with the full range of human experience, the dark as well as the light. The face paint points to the masks we wear as we try to hold on to the stories of our apparent separate selfhood, our personas."

5. Cambium Gallery Me, Myself and AI

Cambium Gallery is excited to continue our 2023 theme of Co-Creation with artists Kesley Birsas and Tatyana Ostapenko in their collaborative show Me, Myself and AI. Birsas and Ostapenko have been exploring new ways of incorporating AI into their creative process. Come see Me, Myself and AI to see the thought provoking combinations and distortions that result from AI. Open 12-7 pm

6. Gallery on Pier 39 Water Therapy

An ocean inspired collection of fluid art paintings representing the inner peace the sea ushers. Sarah Hammond's work is available for purchase directly or through MENAGERIE Artisan Gift Shop.

7. Imogen Gallery The View from Here

Kathleen Faulkner, who works in oil and oil pastel, brings a new series of paintings depicting the quiet places, focusing on landscape of the coastal Pacific Northwest. She conveys a meditative sense, a gentle and serene interpretation of coastal waterways and forests, while reflecting on past and future of these mystical places, and the sustainability of them. Come and meet Faulkner who will be at the gallery during ArtWalk, 5 - 7 pm.

8. Paul Polson Studio Gallery Paul Polson Collection

Paul Polson Studio Gallery will present past work in oil painting and watercolor. This will include his Pipe and Strata series along with his landscape and figurative work. I have plenty of work that has not been seen for those who haven't been here for a while. The center wall will be replaced since I won't need the open space. I found a larger space to finish my large project. It will be fun to give you the details of its progress.

9. RiverSea Gallery Anatomy of Shape

Anatomy of Shape features paintings by Heide Davis and mixed media works by Lisa Sofia Robinson. Working in oils, Davis paints the female form, color-blocked and unclothed. Her contemplative figures are expressive, vulnerable and set in idyllic landscapes, moody interiors, or abstracted backgrounds that act as an extension of their personality. Robinson plays with endless colorful pattern designs in her mixed media works, a blend of painting and collage. Mesmerizing geometric patterns are mathematically precise yet intentionally imperfect. Her hand-cut collage elements and inexact brushwork lend organic texture and pops of sizzling vibrancy to the rhythmic designs. Artist reception 5-8 pm.

10. West Coast Artisans Gallery Ships of All Sizes

Michael Muldoon paints in oil using both brush and knife. You'll see form and color as he interprets what he sees. Currently on display are several originals of Pacific Northwest boats, still life interpretations and landscapes on canvas and recycled keepsake boxes. Gallery open 11 to 7.
